

HoldOn: demo walkthrough

How HoldOn stops a tech-support scam, step by step.

She can't call for help. HoldOn does.

The setup

Margaret, 74

Mom's laptop: Chrome with the HoldOn extension

Sarah

Her daughter, far away: gets alerts on Telegram

The scammer

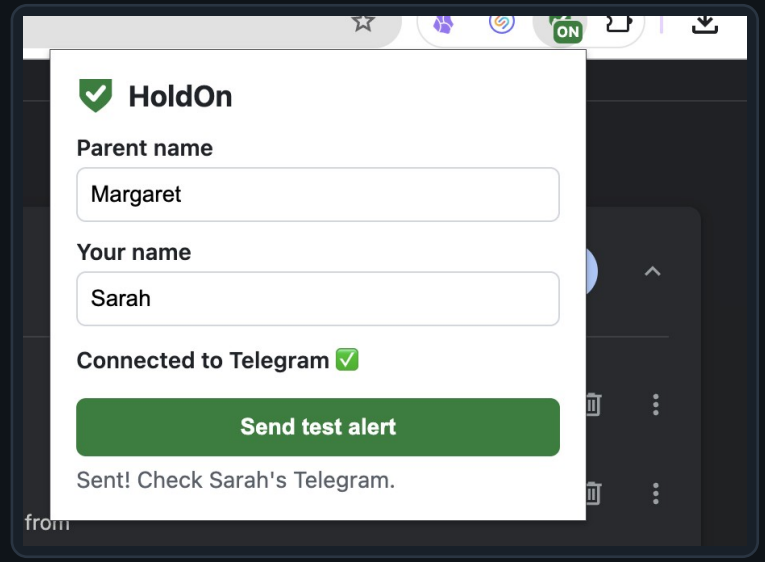

Fake "Microsoft technician" who wants remote access

1 Setup — 2 Fake popup — 3 AnyDesk — 4 Phone buzzes — 5 Scam stopped — 6 Dashboard — 7 Tamper

1 Sarah sets up HoldOn for Mom

SARAH · 2 MINUTES

- Adds HoldOn to Mom's Chrome
- Enters names, sees "Connected to Telegram"
- Clicks Send test alert

Phone: "HoldOn is now protecting Margaret."

2 A fake virus warning appears

MARGARET'S SCREEN

- Scam page: "Your PC is infected. Call Microsoft."
- HoldOn spots scam phrases + a toll-free number
- Covers it: "This warning is FAKE. Do NOT call."

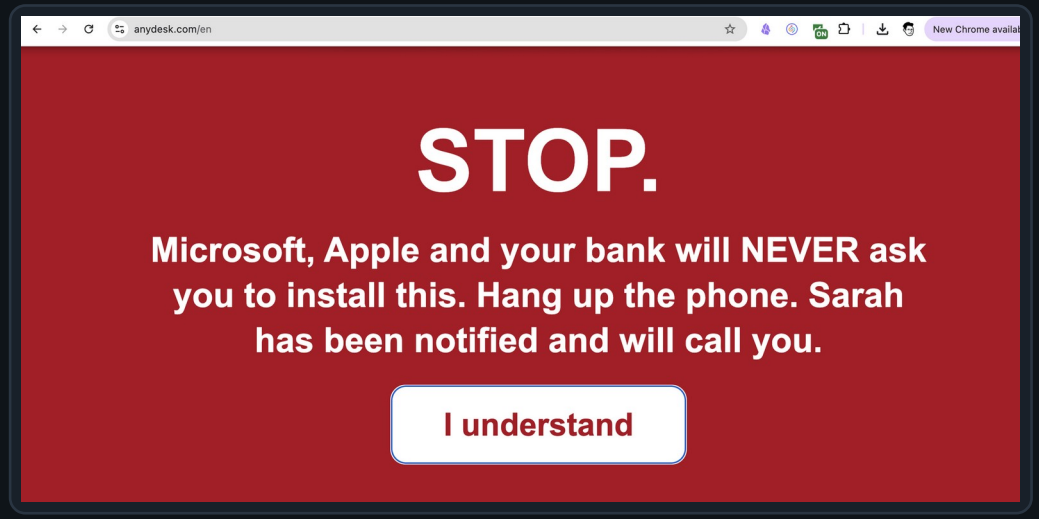

Sarah gets alert #1, silently

3 AnyDesk? HoldOn says STOP

THE DANGER MOMENT

- Scammer asks her to install AnyDesk to control her screen
- HoldOn recognises the site instantly
- Huge, elder-friendly STOP warning

"Sarah has been notified and will call you."

4 Sarah's phone buzzes

SARAH'S PHONE

- AI writes the alert from context: popup, then AnyDesk
- Tells Sarah what to do when she calls
- On Telegram: a channel the scammer can't see

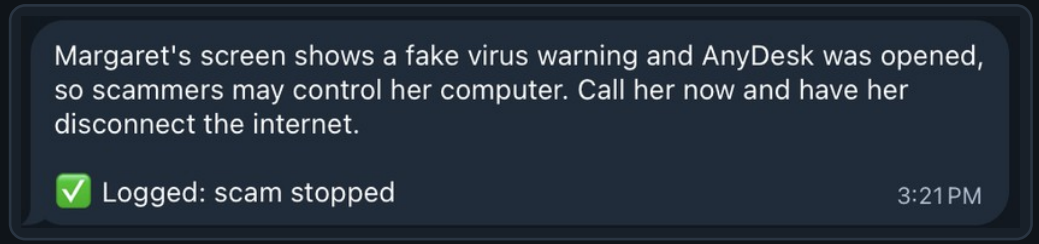

Help arrives from outside the scam

5 Sarah calls Mom. Scam stopped.

ONE TAP

- Sarah calls Margaret and breaks the isolation
- Taps "It was a scam — I stopped it"
- The alert updates: "Logged: scam stopped"

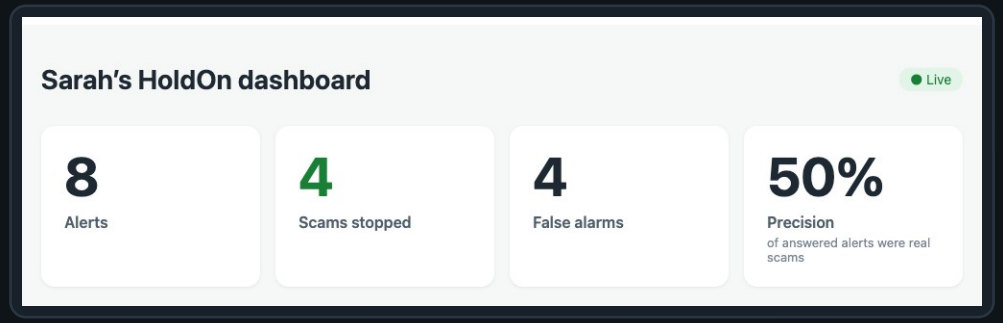

Every alert measures its own impact

6 Impact, measured from day one

ANSWERED IN TELEGRAM

ROLLED UP ON SARAH'S DASHBOARD

- Scams stopped, false alarms and precision, counted live
- Real counts from our test runs today: false alarms were triggered on purpose to tune detection

7 Scammer: "Remove HoldOn"

TAMPER-PROOF

- Scammers often make victims remove protection
- Removing HoldOn triggers one last alert
- Family knows, even after it's gone

⚠ HoldOn was removed from Margaret's laptop. Scammers often ask victims to do this. Call her now.

Exact alert text sent to Sarah's Telegram

Removing HoldOn alerts Sarah too

She can't call for help.

HoldOn does.
